Bridge Made Easy

LOGIC VERSUS LUCK

The aim of the declarer whose bid won the contract is to make game. The aim of his opponents is to prevent him from doing so. These are the first objectives of playing. To make less game is usually a waste of time and effort for it is only in about one case out of thirty that a partial score is of any assistance toward game.

Assume that you are the declarer and a card has been led. The dummy is exposed. Do not touch any of its cards until you have prepared a mental picture of the possible outcome.

Plan your campaign before you finger a card in the dummy. Now is the moment to hesitate. Do not permit your opponents to rush you into playing. If you plan at the beginning you will not have to vacillate during the course of the game. As you continue, it may be necessary to alter slightly the campaign which you prepared at the inception but this maneuver will be in line with your strategy. Every plan is subject to some tactical changes as the playing proceeds for you may encounter an unexpected distribution of cards.

Where the novice fails to make game, the expert holding the same cards very often succeeds. This is at times erroneously attributed to luck. As a matter of fact, it is a well-laid campaign combined with sound judgment which produces winning results for the expert. Luck is a very small factor in the playing of the hand; logic usually wins.

The capable player has an attentive ear and a watchful eye. The bidding of his opponents and their discards furnish him with valuable information as to the location of the remaining cards.

Let logic govern you in the playing of your hand and you soon will find so-called luck trailing in your path.

Bridge-Dinner in Honor of Mrs. Newlin

Miss Mary Evelyn Miller and Miss Florence Wilson entertained with a bridge-dinner at the Malmborg Tavern at Oregon, Thursday evening honoring Miss Richard Shipley Newlin of South America, who has been visiting in Dixon for the past few weeks.

After a delightful dinner, bridge was played on the porch which was attractively decorated with pink and yellow garden flowers. High honors were awarded to Miss Mary Louise Downing and second honors to Mrs. Newlin who also received a dainty guest prize. Mrs. Paul Flanders of Rochelle was the only other out-of-town guest.

Stitch and Chatter Club Met Thursday

The Stitch and Chatter club held their regular meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Orville Heckman of Route 7. All members were present and a pleasant afternoon was spent at sewing and chatting. Later a picnic lunch was served at a large table placed on the lawn and lovely bouquets of nasturtiums and dahlias made the table very attractive.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Walter Heckman on Graham street.

Mabel Gustafson Leads Lady Stars

Miss Mabel Gustafson, DeKalb's woman golfing star, was the outstanding player in the second annual invitational tournament at the Deer Park country club at LaSalle Tuesday and Wednesday. Miss Gustafson with the 18-hole medal round scores of 93-105-98-96 for 392 strokes on 72 holes, was the tournament's low medalist in a field of nearly 100 ladies from a score or more country clubs in northern Illinois.

Miss Gustafson also won five other prizes during the tourney, taking first place in the approaching and putting contest, having the most par holes in Wednesday's play of 36 holes, getting the low ringer score and the low qualifying score. Miss Gustafson had 17 par holes out of 36 Wednesday.

RETURN FROM HAPPY MOTOR TRIP EAST

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ayres have returned from a delightful motor trip through the east. Their destination being McOutcheon, N. J., where they visited Mr. Ayres' aunt, Mrs. Chas. Ayres and Miss Carrie McFarland. On their return they visited Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, two beautiful parks on the ocean beach, also Washington, D. C. and other points of interest.

MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Cantaloupe, cereal, cream, potato omelet, radishes, prune muffins, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Sliced cold boiled ham, potato salad, blueberry batter pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Boiled calf's tongue, steamed spinach, creamed carrots, peach and raspberry sherbet, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

Season the sauce for the carrots with a bit of mustard, using 1/4 teaspoon for 1 1/2 cups sauce. Mix the mustard thoroughly with salt and pepper and sift into sauce to insure perfect blending. Mustard gives a distinctive flavor to the sauce which is particularly pleasing with young carrots.

Serve the tongue on a bed of spinach well seasoned with lemon juice and butter.

Blueberry Batter Pudding
Two cups flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 cups washed and cleaned berries.

Mix and sift flour, salt and sugar. Beat eggs until very light, beating in milk. Add to dry ingredients and beat hard with egg beater. Beat until batter is full of bubbles. Add berries and turn into a buttered pudding dish. Dot with bits of butter and bake forty minutes in a hot oven. Serve with hard sauce.

Short Interviews With Famous Women

"Hard work, determination, and faith in your own product, whether it is yourself or your career, are the three keys to success," said Marie Curie, New York beauty and endearing expert.

"It is the hard work clause that stops so many women today. Too many are content with a job that pays enough to get along on. They do not appreciate what it means to have to hustle, and win by competition."

"Then, too, if a girl is smart looking, and clever, she can have all sorts of invitations out to dine and to dance, so she is perfectly satisfied with a mediocre job, because she has such a good time in her leisure hours."

"And no girl can be out dancing and playing every night, and work hard the next day. It can't be done. So unless a girl has a driving ambition, she becomes just one of the army of employees who work from nine to five."

Miss Dork herself has been most ambitious, and successful. In 18 years she has built up a business that would tempt many a woman to retire to a life of ease.

"But I still have to keep my hand on the throttle," says she, "because competent women are hard to find. And there is no business that will run itself."

"And besides, having formed the habit of hard work, I find it necessary to my happiness, comfort and peace of mind."

Joliet Mayor, 76, Weds Woman of 35

Chicago, July 28.—(AP)—Mayor George F. Searing of Joliet, Ill., laid aside his official duties today and came to Chicago for a marriage license to wed Miss Josephine Barrett, also of Joliet. The mayor, a widower, is 76 years old. Miss Barrett's age was given as 35.

The wedding was to take place later in the day at the Holy Name Cathedral.

ATTENDED BEAUTIFUL PARTY AT WHEATON HOME—

Miss Lucille Kelly has returned from a visit in Chicago for the past week. While there she was the guest of honor at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. William Gibbons of Wheaton at their beautiful home in Gibbon's subdivision. Judge Cook, Attorney Mary Connery and Miss Ruby Kelly of Chicago were guests also.

Miss Lois Stephan and Miss Helen Wagner of Steward are spending the week end at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stephan. Miss Stephan and Miss Wagner are room-mates at Rockford where they are both in training at the Swedish Hospital.

GEORGIA PASTOR IS HERE TO VISIT PARENTS—

Rev. C. R. Stauffer of Atlanta, Georgia arrived Friday for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stauffer for several weeks. He will also visit his sister and family, Mrs. Clinton Rhodes.

STOP IN DIXON ON RETURN FROM ABROAD—

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SULLER

Exclusive aviation clubs where only the highest monkey-monks can fly or be flown are now in process of development and it is not at all unlikely that they will become within less than a decade as socially imprudent as Palm Beach, Southampton and other locales sacred to our Utterly-Utters. Such combination-aviation and co-try clubs are even now well established abroad.

Well, right at this writing it looks as if the richly and socially exclusive wouldn't have to worry about too much of the hot-poll in the ether for some time. But maybe it's well for them to be ready for that dire event. Some day without doubt all the flivver owners will be flying through the air and our great minds will be seeking subterranean transportation to solve the aerial traffic problem.

DO YOUR KIDS "RUSTLE?"

Do you make your children "rustle"? Mrs. Lillian Gilbreth, who has gained considerable publicity as an industrial engineer while she also engaged in the job of producing and rearing eleven children, tells parents in her new book "Living With Our Children" that the main trouble with the average parent is that he or she does not make the children "rustle."

She tells how they often moved into a large rambling house rather than a modern apartment in order to make the children "rustle."

Each of the eleven had its daily duties—not always the same, of course. One day the lawn to be mowed, the dishes to be washed, potatoes peeled, mending, dusting, beds, etc. Mrs. Gilbreth is not the first mother to say that large families make less work for each child in given household duties proportionate with its age and strength and general ability.

I think she's absolutely right. The big criticism that such of us who are not parents make of those who are the making of "door mats" of themselves which most parents engage in. The old story of mama washing and baking and ironing and cleaning up while daughter sits in the parlor with her story book.

BRIDES WANT OVERSTUFFED

Brides are not buying modernistic furniture, store dealers say, with some little astonishment. But why the surprise? For year the symbol of the newlywed has been a nice Brussels or Axminster rug, a conventional dining room, bed room and living room set, conspicuous for overstuffing, shiny varnish, and claw feet. It will take exactly as long for brides to fall for modernistic furniture as for prohibition to be a success. People who expect overnight acceptance of brand new things and the overthrowing of customs years in the making are the eternal survivors.

It seems nothing less than silly to feel constrained in this modern world to write in defense of "old maids."

To be sure, we don't call them that nowadays. They are "unmarried women," or "spinsters," or "bachelor maids." And they do not need defense from ridicule and funny paper cartoons of bony females, stern of visage and erratically dressed, but they do need there is no living person in this defense from exploitation, for whole social system so exploited as the unmarried woman past the average marrying years.

She is exploited by society and she is exploited by her own family. She is exploited by society's conscious and unconscious belief that the unmarried woman is a shirker and a drone. I gaped to read an article by a woman famous for her intelligence the other day and came upon the phrase "spinster and other people who shirk their responsibilities to society."

This assumption so often met from piously good married people who kid themselves that by marrying they performed a great boon to the world and got enough good marks in St.

What would our great-grandmother say if she could see our styles today?

But bless my goodness, what would we think of her quaint modesty?

Peter's book to atone for a million black one, is so funny that one hardly can argue with it.

Just as if any individual could be found who ever married because he thought he was doing a good turn for society, or for any other reason except that he wanted to for his own selfish comfort and happiness—for the very same reason, in fact, that some other people choose not to marry!

And the assumption that an unmarried individual is a shirker in society is equally funny. Sometimes one wonders just what would happen if there were none of these "shirkers" to help the piously married in their job of maintaining a home and raising children.

These "shirkers" are teachers, librarians, playground instructors, doctors, dietitians, social welfare workers, dentists, nurses, governesses, all the professions devoted to the aid of camps, as it were, to parents and homes.

These very "shirkers," nine times out of ten, are assuming financial obligations to parents which their married brothers and sisters complacently affirm they can't assume. They have their families, they reason, and their unwed mother or sister has "nobody but herself to look out for."

It never seems to occur to them that their own children will be their own props for declining years, whereas the unmarried brother or sister must make hay while the sun shines and pile up during wage-earning years enough competence for the lean days.

"I'm sorry, but I can't do a thing for mother or father this year," the married offspring complacently say. "We're awfully hard up, buying our new home and the car and radio, and I got my new electric refrigerator and sewing machine, you know, and it costs so to entertain or do any-reunion. They will be accompanied home by Miss Miller's mother, Mrs. E. Miller.

"Don't litigate—it's costly; compromise" is reported to be the death-bed message left to the world by an eminent lawyer. A health officer would have said "Don't take a chance—it's expensive; never compromise with Ganger," and his advice would not be limited to accidents.

The fellow who goes prowling around this summer without being vaccinated against typhoid is flirting with danger no less than the speed hound who tries to beat the train to the crossing. It may be thrilling to take a chance but it isn't always healthy for the lad who doesn't quite get away with it.

The youngster who starts to school next fall without a vaccination scar on his arm and without being immune to diphtheria is up against a hazard as definite as though he were in the back seat behind a reckless driver. Now is a good time to make the children safe against diphtheria and a good time to vaccinate against smallpox is about the date of the first killing frost next autumn.

The youngsters who get a thorough physical examination this summer and then get in the most hours in swimming, playing ball, fishing and the like are the ones who run the smallest chances of breaking under the fatigue of school work next fall. Pay, sunshine and fresh air added to a wholesome diet and full nights in bed are hard to beat as "safety-first" procedures.

The two national political parties have just undergone the most searching examinations by a whole company of experts and the surgeon has not spared the knife in grooming both for the coming campaign. Folks who trim their health assets as vigorously and earnestly, through the agency of medical examination are as well prepared against the coming of illness as those parties are against election day. A doctor can forecast the health returns, after he has gone thoroughly over the body, as accurately as the politician can forecast their chances at the polls.

Life insurance agents always win the prizes for remembering the right name for the right face at dinner club contests. That's because insurance agents practice remembering names until they become expert. Doctors have the same sort of skill in respect to disease. They can recognize a case of heart trouble or tuberculosis long before a victim himself even suspects that he has been attacked. That's why periodic health examinations are valuable.

Buying printer's ink is an expensive pastime and life insurance companies wouldn't be indulging in it to promote periodic health examinations among policy holders if that sort of thing didn't pay. It costs money to be examined by high grade doctors but it costs more to get sick.

WALNUT REGION'S FIRE DISTRICT IS NEAR COMPLETION

Part of Lee County is Included in Territory Protected

The proposition for the establishment of a fire protection district, comprising five townships in Whiteside, Lee and Bureau counties, covering a territory 110 square miles, including the villages of Deer Grove and Walnut, carried by a vote of 166 to 44 at a special election.

Strong sentiment in favor of the movement to obtain better fire protection is indicated by the vote of almost 2 to 1 for the establishment of the district looking toward the purchase of fire fighting equipment. This section of the country has been practically helpless to combat fires which threaten homes and other properties.

The estimated assessed valuation of the district is $6,000,000. Cost of a fire truck and maintenance of the department for the first year has been placed at between $5,000 and $6,000. A $6,000 levy spread over the entire district will mean a tax rate of less than one mill on $100 and will scarcely be felt by any of the property owners.

However, the next step before any equipment can be purchased will be the incorporating of the district and the appointment of three trustees by the court. The promoters have already started plans to organize a fire department and no doubt all will be in readiness for the purchase of a fire truck by the time the court details are disposed of.

The original petition for the establishment of the fire district included all of Walnut township, the northern half of Bureau township, the eastern part of Greenville township, all in Bureau county; sixteen sections of Hahnman township in Whiteside county, and one fourth of a section of Harmon township in Lee county. The Hahnman territory in the district is four miles square.

At a preliminary hearing on the petition, three sections in Greenville township and all the northern half of Bureau township, except two and one half sections, were allowed to withdraw upon the filing of a protest of property owners in that territory.

In order to prevent the electorate of the village of Walnut from imposing an unwarranted tax on outlying districts, the law provided that the proposal had to receive a majority vote both within the incorporated village of Walnut and in the outlying districts. In view of this angle of the law, to separate voting precincts were established, one in Walnut and the other at the Dodge school house, about one mile north of Walnut.

THE PARTY LABEL.

Texas courts are deciding the question as to who is entitled to use the label of a political party. Because Senator Love, a candidate for lieutenant governor, was being refused a place on the democratic ballot in the primary election in Cameron county, he sought to have the court compel officials to print his name. He contended that his name had been certified by the democratic executive committee. Rejection of it in Cameron county was based upon refusal of Love to support Governor Smith.

Prominence of Senator Love in the national party adds to public interest, but the simple principle of who is entitled to use the party label is of greater importance because of far-reaching results.

Love was assistant of the treasury under William G. McAdoo, later was democratic national committeeman from Texas, a job he resigned rather than support Ma Ferguson as the party nominee for governor. He was one of the leading McAdoo managers in 1924. The whole setting of his political career is inconsistent with support of Governor Smith, and he has carried his opposition into the presidential campaign.

Senator Love's principles are admirable, as is his judgment. Nevertheless, it will be the foreshadowing of a better day in party affairs and party government when a few courts have established rulings concerning the rights of men to use the party label while continuously opposing party candidates.

Up to this time the question has been of greater importance in the north than in the south. After the LaFollette progressive party had been supported by several United States senators, the republicans of the senate showed unusual courage and denied committee places to the bolting senators as republicans. Two years later, however, when organization of the senate by republicans could be effected only by use of the votes of the bolters, they were considered to have done penance enough and were readmitted to the fold. We think the republican senators paid too high a price for the votes of the bolters, but support of that class of politicians always comes high. They demand the pound of flesh.

Republicans have been helpless in the face of use of the party label by any person who desired to use it. Perhaps they have a way of solving the problem in Texas. The lower court held against Love and his associates and the decision has been upheld by a court of appeals. The highest court has not yet passed upon the question.

THERE IS CHARITY.

There is a pretty deep streak of kindness and generosity in most people, if you care to look for it.

Not long ago a gang of bandits staged a holdup in Kansas City. A policeman, James Smith, interfered. They shot him dead and escaped. He was survived by a widow and several small children, and the future looked pretty black for them.

Then his fellow townspeople got busy. Smith had died in the line of duty, defending Kansas City against thugs; would Kansas City see his family suffer poverty? Kansas City would not. A collection was taken to establish a trust fund for them; then another collection was taken to build them a house. Now the house is under construction, and nearly $25,000 has been placed in the bank for the widow and children.

People are, after all, pretty generous and kind if you appeal to them properly.

Rubber prices have dropped so low that tennis courts are now expected to be made of rubber. Tournaments ought to be more interesting than ever, with the stands catching players on the bounce.

The National Founders' Association, an organization of large manufacturers, protests the labor plank in both the Republican and Democratic platforms. Why doesn't Big Business start a third party?

Britain objects to C. C. Pyle's proposal for a dance marathon in London. Backward nations always did resist the encroachments of civilization.

An American jazz musician who can play has gone abroad. Maybe the word "escaped" belongs in that item somewhere.

THE TINYMITES

STORY & ILL COCHRAN—PICTURES & KNICK

"Well, sure enough, this is the grip," cried Scouty, "twas a kindly tip the fairy queen just gave us." Then he took a little slide, and landed safely on the ground beside the creek, and there he found the grip was fairly heavy. Now, just what could be inside?

And then the bunch heard Clowny speak. Said he, "Come on, let's take a peek. There surely must be something in the grip to please us all. It's mighty heavy. Just look here. Why I can't hold it in the air." He lifted it about an inch and had to let it fall.

"Well, how are we to open it?" cried Coppy. "We've no key to fit, and it seems locked securely. Tell me, what are we to do? My knife is sharp enough to cut the thing in little pieces, but I wouldn't care to try it cause the little grip's brand new."

"Well, I should say not!" Scouty said. "For once you've really used your head." He then looked o'er the grip and found a button on the side. "Oh, my," said he, "I think that I will push on this. It's worth the try." And, as he pushed the button hard, the grip flew open wide.

"Hurrah! It's open," Carpy cried. "And now let's see what is inside." They turned the small grip over and some tools spilled on the ground. "Will someone kindly tell me, please, what we are going to do with these," said Clowny, as the whole bunch looked and saw what they had found.

The mystic creak still stood near by. A head came out and shouted, "I am here to tell you little lads how you can all be cheered. Just take those tools and build a man right out of wood. I'm sure you can." And, while the Tinies stood amazed, the queer head disappeared.

as to be of no consequence. My advice is to stock your pantry with a variety of canned vegetables to be used when the fresh ones are not procurable, and thus guarantee yourself a plentiful supply of the essential minerals every day in the year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. F. asks: "What causes the palate to often drop down on the tongue and what can be done to prevent it?"

ANSWER: The average soft palate touches the back of the tongue part of the time. If it bothers you very much there is a simple operation you can have performed which consists of clipping off the end of the soft palate if it is too long.

QUESTION: W. J. L. asks: "What foods may be used with the starchy foods?"

ANSWER: Starchy foods should be used only with the cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables.

QUESTION: Mrs. A. L. K. writes: "Please advise if in playing golf with a person who is in the first stages of tuberculosis, one is in danger of contracting this disease."

ANSWER: I do not consider there is the slightest danger of contracting tuberculosis from another even through close contact. However, I would advise you to tell your tubercular friend to stop playing golf, as the swinging necessary with a golf club is too strenuous for one who is suffering from any form of pulmonary trouble. Tell him to take his exercises by walking long distances each day, but to stop exercising his upper body.

QUESTION: P. M. J. asks: "Could you tell me the cause of a staggering and dizzy feeling in my head in the mornings, and the remedy? Also the reason for a rash completely covering the body when a person gets excited? I was listed as 50% anemic two years ago. Would this have anything to do with it? My weight is about 170 pounds."

ANSWER: If you are still anemic, that could account for your dizziness in the mornings, and also for the rash on the body. Have a blood count made in a laboratory, send me the report, and I will give you further advice. Also, send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dinner—Roast beef, artichokes, steamed small carrots, with parsley, celery and nut salad (nuts to be toasted), Jello or Jell-Well with cream.

Fresh vegetables should be thoroughly cleaned with a vegetable brush under running water in order to remove all trace of grit or poison spray. The water that clings after the final washing usually affords sufficient moisture to start the cooking process, especially where the heavy aluminum pans are used. With a little care almost any vegetables which are commonly cooked by boiling or steaming may be given a desirable and "different" taste by baking, such as ground beets, turnips, carrots, etc. The flavor may be varied by slightly browning on top.

In either boiling or baking vegetables, avoid over-cooking and be sparing of the water added. A little careful practice, with the proper cooking utensils, will more than repay you in the better flavor and actual benefit derived from fresh or canned vegetables.

It is believed by some that the vitamins in vegetables are lessened through the process of canning, but with our modern methods of canning, the loss of vitamins is so slight

PHILANTHROPIST LUMBER KING OF NORTHWEST, DEAD

Thomas B. Walker Died at Minneapolis at
Age of 88 Years

Minneapolis, July 28.—(AP)—Thomas Barlow Walker, Millionaire lumberman, philanthropist and art collector died early today. He was 88 years of age.

Utilizing his millions to advance the cause of art and culture as well as church and charity, Thomas Barlow Walker enabled Minneapolis to establish a life time of assembling objects from all parts of the world, was given to Minneapolis.

Then, when the city hesitated, in arranging for what Mr. Walker considered suitable quarters for the treasure exhibit, the determined collector at the age of 84 years used a valuable site of his own facing a principal street, to build a home for the art assortment.

For three score years a leading northwest lumberman, Mr. Walker was reputed to have been one of the country's wealthiest men. Possessed of great business ability and keen foresight he acquired a huge fortune and at one time he, with his sons, held approximately 1,000,000 acres of California timber lands.

Philanthropy was Mr. Walker's principal pleasure. The Minneapolis Public Library with its museum and other features the largest institution of its kind in the northwest, owes its origin to the pioneer lumberman whose name was linked with virtually every phase of public welfare in Minneapolis for 60 years.

He was a firm believer in religious training and subscribed heavily to church societies and charitable institutions. Mr. Walker once said he attributed his achievements to "my reputation for perfect integrity, fairness and to considerate treatment of every one, giving those I dealt with the benefit of doubt in every case where disagreement arose."

In proof of this he recalled he never had a strike of employees in any of his concerns. One of his notable contributions to Minneapolis industrial life surrounded his donation of a site and finances for a building used as a clearing house between capital and labor during the early labor union days.

Mr. Walker was born February 1, 1840 at Zonia county, Ohio, the son of Platt Bayliss and Austis K. Walker. While attending Baldwin University at Beream, Ohio, he began his business career by selling grindstones.

His first definite step toward lumbering came at the age of 19 years when he bought timber lands at Paris, Ill., and sold ties to the Terre Haute & St. Louis railroad.

Coming to Minneapolis three years later he joined a crew dispatched to examine the St. Paul and Pacific land grant preparatory to razing it for sale. Through this and other surveying projects he gained extensive knowledge of the Minnesota timber lands, thus laying the foundation for his success.

He organized the Red River lumber company in 1882 and built large sawmills at Grand Forks and Crookston to cut from the vast pine stands. When lumber showed signs of exhaustion in Minnesota he turned to other fields, buying California tracts until it was reported that he owned the largest single holding of timber in the United States.

Mr. Walker married Miss Harriett Bulet, daughter of the founder of Baldwin University, his alma mater, 1863. After her death in 1917, he endowed several charitable institutions with which Mrs. Walker was actively identified during her life.

OAK FOREST

Oak Forest—Miss Mary Becker, George Brooks, Jr., and Mrs. Lester Hoyle returned home Tuesday from East Grand Forks where they had been visiting for several days with Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Miller and family. Mrs. Miller and daughter Kathleen, who had been visiting in Dixon and vicinity with relatives for some time, returned with them to her home in East Grand Forks. They report the crops very good and ought to yield a bumper harvest. They made the trip home in two days, making 493 miles the second day. George drove the entire distance. On the way to Minnesota the party stopped for a few hours visit with Mr. and Mrs. John Miller and family, who reside about 9 miles south of Marshallfield. Mr. Miller says his crops are good except the hay crop which was a failure in that part of the country.

Rockford Woman is Severely Burned

Her apron catching fire while she was burning rubbish in the rear of her home Mrs. Harriet Cook age 73 years of Rockford was severely burned about her hips and the upper part of her body shortly after noon Friday.

Due to her age Mrs. Cook's burns are regarded as critical, although not necessarily fatal. She is being cared for at Rockford hospital. When she stepped too close to the rubbish pile flames, Mrs. Cook's apron was ignited. The flames spread to her dress and waist, the fire enveloping the upper part of her body.

MAIL SERVICE FROM DIXON IS CURTAILED ANEW

Service is Withdrawn from Another Eastbound
Train

The Post Office Department has seen fit to withdraw mail service from C. & N. W. train 16, effective August 1, 1928, which leaves Dixon at 4:02 a. m. and which train has in the past, been an important outlet for eastbound business mail.

Mail service which is now performed in train 16 will be transferred to C. & N. W. train 10. This change will eliminate eastbound mail service in the early morning, owing to the fact that train 16 does not stop at Dixon. A pouch of eastbound mail will be dispatched from the local office for connection with train 10, at Clinton, Iowa, via C. & N. W. train 23, which means that mail matter deposited in the local Post Office at 4:30 p. m. and destined for eastern points, will at 7:45 p. m. be dispatched to train 23 for connection with train 10 at Clinton, Iowa.

Train 10 will make the same connections at Chicago with mail for eastern states that train 16 is now making and if the patrons of the local post office will deposit their eastern mail on or before 7:30 p. m. there will be no delay in transit on account of the change of service from train 10.

The air mail service which is becoming more popular every day, is a branch of the postal service which should be given much consideration, especially where speed is desired. There are now more than twenty air mail routes operating between almost all of the larger cities in this country, which means that a great deal of time may be saved by using the air mail, especially with mail matter addressed to distant points from the office of mailing.

Air mail for eastern points via the "night plane," also that for western points should be deposited in the local post office not later than 12:20 p. m. and air mail for eastern points, via the "day mail," must be in the local post office not later than 4:30 p. m.

The rates of postage on air mail after August 1, will be 5 cents for the first ounce or fraction of an ounce and 10 cents for each additional ounce or fraction of an ounce.

The air mail service has come to stay and the Post Office Department is desirous of obtaining the co-operation of all postal patrons in an effort to augment this very important branch of the Postal Service, which will in a comparatively short time connect every city of any size in this country.

What Averages of Leagues Show

NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York, July 28.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby took advantage of pitching which suited his fancy in the week ending Wednesday, and boosted his batting average to .397, while Paul Waner, the runner-up, was slipping back to .368. The figures are based on averages released today and including games of last Wednesday.

Hornsby now seems well on the way to his seventh batting championship of the National League. His average represents 115 hits in 290 times at bat in 82 games.

The same averages show Larry Benton of New York setting a burning pace for the pitchers with sixteen victories and four defeats for a mark of 800.

Burleigh Grimes of Pittsburgh leads the hurlers in shutouts. He has four.

St. Louis players are numerous among the various individual leaders but Del Bissonette of Brooklyn has regained the runs-batted-in title from Jim Bottomley. Del, third ranking man in home runs with eighteen, has driven 82 runs home.

Individual batters following Hornsby and Waner are: Grantham, Pittsburgh, .358; Bottomley, St. Louis, .355; Sisler, Boston, .349; Lindstrom, New York, .348; Roettger, St. Louis, .341; Doherty, St. Louis, .338; Scott, Pittsburgh, .333; and Frisch, St. Louis, .332.

Team batting finds the Pirates skipping merrily along in front with .308, but the Cardinals are clubbing a dangerous .297.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Chicago, July 28.—(AP)—"Goose" Goslin, the Washington outfielder that can hit but not throw, is finding his hitting leadership in the American League in a precarious position. At least that is what the figures release today and including games of Wednesday show.

Al Simmons, a member of Connie Mack's famous aggregation of old timers and youngsters, has started to hit the ball. During the week Simmons played in eight games and collected 14 hits to boost his average from .369 to .378, only 14 points less than the average of the mighty Goslin, who slipped a couple of points.

Lou Gehrig of the Yankees has been steadily climbing up the ladder and is now only two points behind the Athletics' outfielder, a six-point increase over the preceding week.

Following Goslin, Simmons and Gehrig among the regulars, come Manush, St. Louis, .354; Lazzeri, New York, .348; E. Miller, Philadelphia, .347; Myer, Boston, .336; Cobb, Philadelphia, .331; E. Rice, Washington, .325; and Fonseca, Cleveland, .325.

The Athletics have moved within striking distance of the New York Yankees in team batting. Only five points separate the league leaders and the runner-up, the Yankees having an average of .302, three points less than last week.

Unable to lay claim to much of anything else in the league the Boston Red Sox are tied for top honors with St. Louis in team fielding.

FISH AND REST ATTRACT HOOVER FOR ABOUT WEEK

The Republican Nominee is Off for Woods of Northern Oregon

Stanford University, Calif., July 28.—(AP)—His homecoming celebration in San Francisco, Palo Alto and intermediate towns over, Herbert Hoover today turned his face to the northwards for a motor and railway journey that is to take him into Oregon and last for five days.

The Republican presidential candidate leaves behind him the cares of the campaign and seeks rest and recreation in the out of the way places where he will fish for trout, and visit again some of the picturesque spots in the northern part of his home state. On the journey, set to start almost with the dawn, his son, Allan, his secretary, George Akerson, Assistant United States Attorney William J. Donovan, and thirteen of the newspaper correspondents and the photographers who accompanied him across the continent from Washington were prepared to go along. In addition, there were some officials of Stanford University and a few personal friends.

From Palo Alto the route lay to

San Francisco and across San Francisco Bay by ferry, and northward through the Sausalito Valley and Petaluma country, and on into the redwood district to Bull Flat, on the Bull Creek near the Eel river, where camp will be made for the night after a run of 290 miles.

Monday, the nominee and his fellow travelers will reach Hornbrook, Calif., just south of the Oregon line early in the day and continue on a short distance to Browns Camp, which will be the fishing ground for Monday and Tuesday.

Tuesday evening the party will board a train for San Francisco, arriving there Wednesday morning and motoring the 33 miles to Stanford University. There will be some fishing Sunday at Medford, but Mr. Hoover will make his first stop upon the arrival at Brown's Camp, which is on the headwaters of the Klamath river.

At the nominee's request, there will be no formal welcoming ceremonies or demonstrations in any of the towns through which he is to pass both in this state and Oregon, but crowds were expected to assemble at the various points to get a look at the man called to the leadership of the Republican party.

VOLCANO MAYON IS TERRIFYING FILIPINOS NOW

People of Province of Albay are Fleeing
Before Lava

Manila, July 28.—(AP)—Western Albay province was held in a grip of terror today as the volcano Mayon began a new rampage, shooting tons of lava hundreds of feet into the air, while the entire countryside shook and rumbled in a series of earthquakes.

Swayed by superstition and fear of the volcano, many of the natives fled at the beginning of the phenomenon. A few hours later, as the flow of lava showed no signs of abating and the earthquakes and rumblings continued, the few persons remaining in the town of Libog, near the foot of the mountain, fled to safety.

A new crater was opened about 500 feet from the summit of the mountain this morning. When the first discharge of molten lava struck the earth at the base of the mountain it splashed about half a kilometer. Huge quantities of the melted rock started oozing toward Libog. A railroad and a main highway in the path of the lava were threatened.

This is the second serious eruption of Mayon in the last two weeks.

DURO Benefits Every MEMBER of the FAMILY!

The Automatic

The Semi-Automatic

To provide a constant supply of clean, really soft water, the husband in Any Family installs a Duro Water Softener. He thinks mostly of the relief it will bring to his wife. And then the Any Family finds that Duro-softened water is a daily blessing to everybody in the home.

In bringing an end to hard water woes, or to dependence on rain water and the germ-breeding cistern, Duro directly benefits each one of them.

A Labor Saver

Mother first, of course. She appreciates it most. It helps her with dishes, with the clothes, with all cleaning tasks. Clothes come out of the wash immaculate, with less work. Pots and pans don't take nearly so much scouring. Perfectly softened water halves the time spent on these duties. It makes possible lots of good rich suds that quickly soak dirt away.

Everybody shares the pleasure of this lightening of daily household tasks. And all, from father to the tot, enjoy directly these other advantages of Duro-softened water at every faucet:

It is kind to the skin, cleansing thoroughly yet gently. It avoids the irritating effects of hard water elements—preserves the beauty of a clear complexion.

It protects the smooth whiteness of hands that must wash and clean, by making strong soaps and other harsh cleansers unnecessary.

It makes rich, delightful lather for the shampoo; leaves the hair fluffy and glistening with life because it's clean.

It is healthier to use than stagnant cistern water could possibly be. It is simply city water with hard elements removed.

Your Protection

Duro Water Softeners are licensed under Patents Nos. 1,196,923, 1,348,977, 1,455,363, 1,502,673, and re-issue No. 16,497, owned by The Permutit Co. of N. Y. Further protected by Duro Patents Nos. 1,634,409, 1,644,714, 1,646,581, 1,625,108, 1,608,091, 1,623,399, 1,625,197, and other patents pending.

Softened water saves money. It requires less soap. Clothes last at least 60 per cent longer than where hard water is used (proved by laundry tests). It avoids replacement of encrusted water pipes and boilers.

A Duro Water Softener is the one modern home convenience that actually saves while it benefits every member of the family every day in the year.

A Type, Size and Price for Any Household

A Duro Water Softener lasts for many years; it will pay back its cost in two or three.

For attention-free service, for water softening that goes on by itself, we recommend most highly the Duro Automatic. Once installed, it operates without your ever giving it a thought, delivering a constant supply of pure, clean perfectly softened water.

The Semi-Automatic has one lever to operate in regenerating—no complicated valves. It requires attention only once in several months. Has most of the advantages of the full Automatic, and a lower price.

The Hand-Operated Softener serves admirably when low cost is the first consideration. It is the lowest priced nationally sold and guaranteed softener on the market.

Any type is easy to install in a new home or an old. It is quickly connected to city water pipes.

ONLY $25

An initial payment as low as $25 will put a genuine Duro Water Softener in your home, with plenty of time to complete payments.

SHERIFF FOUND STEEL BARS IN MORRISON JAIL

Contemplated Attempt to Break Out of Jail is Foiled Today

Morrison—Sheriff J. W. Kelly and Deputy Harrison have been having considerable trouble of late with some of the prisoners at the county jail. They have recently moved all of the 13 prisoners to the cells on the first floor. Some of the more trusted prisoners have spoken about the possibility of a jail break attempt and the officers made an investigation.

In one of the upper cells, formerly occupied by Walter Brown of Bloomington, who is awaiting action of the October grand jury, a large piece of iron was found in a flue. The piece of iron is about 30 inches long and had been broken from one of the cells. A window stick had been used by the prisoner in prying the steel bar loose from the jail cell. The bar had been wrapped with string in several places to deaden the sound. It is about 1/2 inch thick and an inch wide and is pointed, which makes a mighty formidable weapon. Brown had a belt about his waist that had slits on the inside and in it, according to tips from other prisoners, he had carried steel files.

In a package of cigarettes taken from Brown last night were found several pieces of a steel saw. The saw blades had been inserted in the package and the seal was not broken.

One of the bars in Brown's cell on the upper floor was sawed partly off. The material was all taken away from the prisoner and he was placed in an inside cell on the upper floor in solitary confinement. His water and meals will be given him by prisoner Schroeder, who is in from Moline for larceny of chickens.

Brown is held on a charge of stealing an automobile from the carnival at Sterling about two months ago. He was caught at Geneva. Herbert Spencer of Worcester, Mass., in also in jail awaiting the action of the grand jury for the same offense, and it was largely through Spencer that the officers became suspicious. According to Spencer, Brown was all set to hit the sheriff with the piece of iron one Sunday night about three weeks ago, but Spencer prevented him.

The man will be kept in close confinement from now on and a close watch will be kept on all packages going to the prisoners. Yesterday morning deputy Harrison removed a straight edge razor from the cell that Brown had been holding out for several days.

Hoover and Smith are both trying to get the VOTER to the POLLS. Far is five, according to the solution on page 9, which you may be able to beat.

THE RULES

1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You can change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word of common usage, for each pump, slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

One solution is printed on page 9.

Good Teeth and Good Health

BY P. H. PHILLIPS, D. D. S.

Renov. Nev. Sec. Nevada State Dental Ass'n.

This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Gorgas Memorial, which has its headquarters at 400 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago.

Good teeth are essential for the organs of the human system to function properly. Since the advent of the x-ray the medical and dental professions have come to realize more and more each day the relationship of poor teeth to ill in other parts of the body. The mouth being the gateway to all the vital organs, it is high time to sound a warning to the general public how necessary it is to practice oral hygiene and prevent the ravages of dental carries from destroying the teeth. They should all be educated to STOP! LOOK! LISTEN! Stop putting off giving the necessary attention to their teeth. Look at their teeth often, and keep them clean; listen to the advice of their family dentist.

Rapid progress has been made by the dental profession, in the past decade, in preventive dentistry and in correcting the evils of bad teeth, but the greatest work to be done is to educate the growing child in what we might call the art of saving teeth, by proper diet, oral prophylaxis, and care of the teeth. The child will have more vitality, and learn more readily, and the adult will be more efficient.

There are statistics on the loss of millions of dollars annually due to the ravages of various diseases, and how little we realize how many millions are lost annually through the neglect of the teeth. Bad teeth are in many cases the primary cause of rheumatism, ear infections, ulcers of the stomach, arthritis, appendicitis, infected tonsils, heart disease, sinusitis, ear disturbances, mental depression, glandular infections, gall bladder and liver disease, neuritis, anemia, and general infection. With these established facts it is time to educate the public to realize that it is far more important to care for their teeth than for their family car.

Good teeth are necessary to produce proper mastication and assimilation and also to prevent poisons being absorbed into the system from diseased, germ-laden teeth. Good health is equally necessary to produce good teeth and healthy tissues supporting them.

Who's Who in Dogdom—No. 10

How Airedale Champion Was Sold for 60 Cents

Most of the best known dog stories of fiction are built upon the same foundation.

A dog, regarded as a cur, finds a friend in some big-hearted individual who feeds the dog, gives it shelter and is rewarded in the final chapter by being handed the purple winner's ribbon by a stern-faced judge in the main show ring at Madison Square Garden while thousands roar themselves hoarse and clap their hands to blisters. That is fiction.

He Cost 60 Cents
Still, if you told the fiction writer that it could never happen, he would be able to contradict you if he knew the story of Aman Gem.

Many dog fanciers, particularly the fanciers of Airedale terriers, remember Aman Gem. He was an Airedale that the Vickery Kennels of Illinois showed several years ago. At that time Airedales were at the crest of their popularity and probably the most favored breed in the land.

But the story of Aman Gem is one of the few romances of the show ring. Aman Gem imported into this country for more than $1000 by the Vickery Kennels, cost the equivalent of 60 cents originally.

Aman Gem had been gathered in with other "strays" and was one of a dirty, motley abject homeless group, in a dog pound in England, penned behind the steel bars of the "death house" awaiting the hiss of the lethal gas and the dying yelps in the execution chamber beyond.

A dog fancier, happening to stop at the dog pound for a look at the condemned, noticed the Airedale, became conscious of the show points of the "stray" and bought the dog's freedom for a sum of money that was the equivalent of 60 cents in American currency.

Makes History
He fed the dog, groomed it, brought it out at England's leading show, won, continued winning and then sold the dog for a large sum. Aman Gem, condemned, escaping execution by a few precious hours, continued winning in this country, and with no more pedigree than any cur in any pound in the country, made history for the breed.

Such is the history of Aman Gem, an Airedale that trod the sawdust arena of America's leading dog shows some years ago, and where in fiction can you rival the story of Aman Gem?

The Airedale terrier of today is the kin of terriers. He has spirit and pluck and is the best of companions and guardians.

Narrow Escape for Glider Champion

Paul Hesselbach, upper right, German glider expert and holder of the world record for sustained flight, was followed by bad luck when he came to America to demonstrate his motorless ship. While taking off at Highland Light, Mass., in the glider Darnstadt, shown here, he was wrecked right at the edge of a 140-foot cliff. A few feet farther and he would have fallen to almost certain death. Hesselbach is shown holding the whistle he used to signal his ground crew.

New Orleans—One after another, friends of pretty Bessie Moran go to jail.

In 1926, she was Bessie Stone. She was in company with Ernest Brighton when he was arrested on a charge of assault and robbery. Brighton was sentenced to three to five years.

Several months ago she was with P. S. Jackson when he was arrested in Canada. Jackson was sentenced to a long term for embezzling American Express Company money orders.

The other day, on the eve of Jackson's departure for the penitentiary, Bessie was arrested with Charles Whitney, who has confessed, according to police, to participation in several recent holdups.

Police are waiting to see who Bessie's next friend will be.

Bureau Co. Centennial
Stamp Bears Likeness of Chief

Sheffield—Hundreds of Bureau county centennial stamps are going through the mails announcing to old settlers and relatives and friends that they are invited to the 100th anniversary celebration of the county at Princeton fair grounds July 31, August 1 and 2.

Mary Winifred Skinner of Princeton junior high school, daughter of State's Attorney Joseph T. Skinner, is probably the youngest person having much to do with the centennial. It was she who designed the centennial stamp. Her poster was chosen as best typifying the 100 years.

Within the map of the county is shown the old Chief Shabbona or Shabbona as later day writers give it, selected because he was ever the friend of the whites and a man of peace. A miniature covered wagon on one side and an airplane on the other explain themselves.

Shabbona was of the Ottawa tribe but in youth married the daughter of a noted Potawatomi chief whom he succeeded as chief. He died a few years after and became one of the principal chiefs of the Ottawas.

In 1811 he accompanied Tecumseh in his mission to the Creek Indians in Mississippi, and was as the council of Vincennes with him.

Becomes War Aide.
At the time of the British war in 1812 he was made a war chief and was aide to Tecumseh and stood by his side when he fell at the battle of the Thames. When Dick Johnson, the president, he visited Washington D. C. and had an interview with him relative to his chief's death and after it Johnson took the old warrior by the arm introducing him to the heads of departments and when he bade him farewell gave him a heavy gold ring which the chief treasured and wore until his own death.

Of noble appearance, straight and tall, the whites could detect in him a nobility of character and while he spoke English imperfectly and was somewhat awkward among his own as an orator, his superior knowledge of men gave him great influence with his people.

Gains Influence.
After the death of the beloved old chief, Senachwine and Black Partidge, no chief between great lakes and the Mississippi exercised so much influence. His home was in Shabbona grove in DeKalb county but he had made Bureau county his hunting ground for thirty years and saved the lives of many early settlers.

Shabbona hated war and always pleaded with his warriors to keep out of it, realizing that his race must give way to the stronger whites, and that bloodshed was of no avail. Thus he counseled them when Black Hawk came into Bureau county to incite them to war.

He had two wives, one the partner of his youth, by whom he had many children. At a later period he married a young squaw and two more children were born. This was ever a source of worry to Shabbona who could not understand why they could not live in peace since other chiefs had many wives who lived in perfect harmony.

Hated Bloodshed.
At the beginning of the Black Hawk war seventeen of his young braves ran away and joined Black Hawk's Sac and Fox warriors and two of them took part in the Indian creek massacre in LaSalle county as well as in the killing of Mike Girty's band of Elijah Phillips, the only white killed in Bureau county in the war except the Rev. James Sample and wife. Shabbona never forgave the warriors and none was allowed to return to his tribe after the war except one who was a brother of his younger squaw, who was a cripple, having lost his hand in a battle in Wisconsin.

At the beginning of the war Shabbona hurried to Dixon followed by his warriors, the chief riding into Dixon at the same time that Stillman's army reached the ferry and the soldiers urged him thinking he was of the enemy and were treating him roughly when a man who recognized him ran for John Dixon, keeper of the Dixon ferry, who rushed out and rescued his friend. He took him to his own house and introduced him to Governor Reynolds, General Atkinson and Colonel Taylor.

He and his warriors joined Atkinson's army participating in all the battles during the war. In the fall of 1812 he and his band abandoned their reservations in the Mississippi and went west of the river and settlers immediately took up the land. But the old chief's fidelity to the whites caused him and his tribe to be persecuted by the Sacs and Foxes and in their revenge they killed his son and one of his nephews and he became hunted like a wild beast.

Two years after crossing from Illinois with a part of his family, he again returned to Bureau county and for some years traveled from place to place, visiting western cities where he was much honored and received valuable gifts. He made his last visit to Bureau county and Princeton in 1857, having many admirers in that city, among them men and women whom he had taught to shoot, trap and hunt in their youth. Tears filled his dim old eyes as he asked for friends who had passed on.

The people of Ottawa raised money and bought him land on the Illinois river near Seneca in Grundy county, built him a home and supplied his living. He died at the age of 84 on the banks of the Illinois and contrary to his wishes was buried in Morris cemetery where a monument now marks his grave.

At the time of the Black Hawk war seventeen of his young braves ran away and joined Black Hawk's Sac and Fox warriors and two of them took part in the Indian creek massacre in LaSalle county as well as in the killing of Mike Girty's band of Elijah Phillips, the only white killed in Bureau county in the war except the Rev. James Sample and wife. Shabbona never forgave the warriors and none was allowed to return to his tribe after the war except one who was a brother of his younger squaw, who was a cripple, having lost his hand in a battle in Wisconsin.

At the beginning of the war Shabbona hurried to Dixon followed by his warriors, the chief riding into Dixon at the same time that Stillman's army reached the ferry and the soldiers urged him thinking he was of the enemy and were treating him roughly when a man who recognized him ran for John Dixon, keeper of the Dixon ferry, who rushed out and rescued his friend. He took him to his own house and introduced him to Governor Reynolds, General Atkinson and Colonel Taylor.

He and his warriors joined Atkinson's army participating in all the battles during the war. In the fall of 1812 he and his band abandoned their reservations in the Mississippi and went west of the river and settlers immediately took up the land. But the old chief's fidelity to the whites caused him and his tribe to be persecuted by the Sacs and Foxes and in their revenge they killed his son and one of his nephews and he became hunted like a wild beast.

Two years after crossing from Illinois with a part of his family, he again returned to Bureau county and for some years traveled from place to place, visiting western cities where he was much honored and received valuable gifts. He made his last visit to Bureau county and Princeton in 1857, having many admirers in that city, among them men and women whom he had taught to shoot, trap and hunt in their youth. Tears filled his dim old eyes as he asked for friends who had passed on.

The people of Ottawa raised money and bought him land on the Illinois river near Seneca in Grundy county, built him a home and supplied his living. He died at the age of 84 on the banks of the Illinois and contrary to his wishes was buried in Morris cemetery where a monument now marks his grave.

At the time of the Black Hawk war seventeen of his young braves ran away and joined Black Hawk's Sac and Fox warriors and two of them took part in the Indian creek massacre in LaSalle county as well as in the killing of Mike Girty's band of Elijah Phillips, the only white killed in Bureau county in the war except the Rev. James Sample and wife. Shabbona never forgave the warriors and none was allowed to return to his tribe after the war except one who was a brother of his younger squaw, who was a cripple, having lost his hand in a battle in Wisconsin.

LOVE FOR TWO
RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BETTIE LOU WARD married ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH.

The only shadow on the bride's happiness was Lila's belief of seeing friends that she was Rod's first love.

A position in New York is offered Rod by TOM FRASER and he accepts. Anxious to make a good impression, they live beyond their income and Bettie Lou finds it hard to resist when MOLLY FRASER urges her to buy more than she can afford. Rod and Bettie Lou quarrel over money, and to make matters worse Lila arrives to visit Molly and make life miserable for Bettie Lou. But they introduce her to a stamp. Her poster was chosen as best typifying the 100 years.

Lila asks Bettie Lou to forgive the past and be friends. But trying to keep up society with wealthy friends plunges them in debt. Rod becomes depressed and she tries to change her mind. He wants to notify the police but she demurs, pointing out that the suspicion might spoil his career.

She begs him to keep the matter secret, even cost Bettie Lou—and he promises on condition that she will let him pay their value when he returns the money. He keeps his word, but he lies to Bettie Lou about his two engagements with Lila and when she discovers his falsehood all the old doubts about holding his love from Lila returned.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVI
LILA'S half-suppressed irritation over Bettie Lou's failure to meet her returned in full flower when Rod voiced his unnamable fear.

She had forgotten, in her anticipation of this half-hour alone with him, that she too had been concerned for Bettie Lou's safety earlier in the afternoon.

But now that Rod was showing a feverish desire to run off pell mell just because he had missed a telephone call from his wife . . . Lila shrugged. It would do no good to keep him now.

As they were leaving the building it occurred to Lila that Rod would wonder, when he learned that Bettie Lou had failed to keep an appointment with her, why she hadn't mentioned it. No use allowing her anger to lead her into a misunderstanding with him.

"I thought you might know why she didn't meet me for the matter," she remarked, a touch of seriousness in her voice. From the corner of her eye she could see Rod's face take on an expression of alarm.

"Do you suppose anything has happened to her?" he exclaimed fearfully.

"No, of course not," Lila replied. "She probably had to go some place in a hurry and couldn't wait to 'phone me."

"She called the office before one," Rod explained; "just after I'd left, our operator told me. She could have called you then."

"Oh well, maybe she forgot all about the show, though I talked with her this morning," Lila said, at last getting genuinely interested.

THEY had reached the street now. "I'll drive you home," she offered but Rod said he could make better time in the subway. Lila took him by the arm and propelled him into her limousine. "Don't be silly," she remarked lightly. "If Bettie Lou called the office as you say then nothing has happened to her."

"But she may have started for the theater afterward," Rod pointed out. "She isn't home."

"Then she must have been called some place in a hurry, just as I said," Lila insisted. "You'd know by this time if she met with an accident on the street."

Lila's remark carried enough logic to convince Rod. He abandoned the plan of taking the subway. But he could not relieve his mind entirely of worry. Bettie Lou rarely called the office. Only upon most pressing matters did she ever disturb him in his work. And where could she have been called to with such urgent haste?

He put the question to Lila. "I don't know," she confessed; "unless it was a message from Wavville."

"But Bettie Lou wouldn't leave for Wavville without telling me," Rod declared.

"Well, we'll soon find out why she's had us both on our ears," Lila remarked, again feeling irritated. Rod's undiminished concern for Bettie Lou displeased her. It spoke too plainly of what his wife meant to him.

She felt somewhat relieved when they arrived at Rod's apartment. Perhaps, after all, Bettie Lou would be without a good excuse for breaking their theater engagement without notice. That would give her a chance to impress Rod with her magnanimity, providing, of course, that she was able to control her temper.

And suppose Bettie Lou were not at home! Well, Lila wouldn't grieve over that. . . . Rod might be in need of sympathy.

BETTIE LOU was gone! Rod went hurriedly through the rooms, growing more alarmed as each passing moment disclosed no trace of his wife. When he returned to the living room where Lila waited he was visibly shaken.

"Have you looked for a note?" she asked. Rod glanced around the room.

"In the bedroom; probably on the pillow," Lila went on. "It's usually done that way," she laughed, to make light of her remark. It was just one of her little jokes. But Rod missed the point. . . . The idea that Bettie Lou had left him did not occur to him in any form, comic or otherwise. Yet it was reasonable to expect that she had left some word for him. So he began to search for it.

It didn't take him long to find it. It was in the bedroom, but not planned to suggest it. Rod located it on Bettie Lou's desk, and alongside it was a telegram she had received from Wavville. Rod read her note first. She referred him to the message and said she had taken the first train she could get. Rod was stunned. Bettie Lou had gone away without telling him!

He read the telegram after a bit. Bettie Lou's mother was ill.

Rod went out to Lila and showed her the message. "I really thought it might be something like that," she said. "Well, there isn't anything for you to do but come along with me and spend the evening."

"Thank you," Rod mumbled, "but I'd rather not leave the apartment. Bettie Lou will wire me."

"You can leave word to have the message sent to our address," Lila urged. Rod was in no mood to acquiesce. So Lila was forced to end her coaxing and leave him.

She did not realize that he was merely making a gesture of faith in Bettie Lou—faith that he would hear from her. The brevity and coolness of her note had shocked him. It was as though a separation from him meant no more to her than going out to tea without him.

Before she went away Lila made Rod promise to let her know if he had word about his mother-in-law. She assumed Bettie Lou had said she would send him a wire. She also interviewed the maid in the kitchen. Yes, Mrs. Bryer had left rather hurriedly after receiving the telegram and had instructed her to serve dinner and breakfast and then consult Mr. Bryer for further orders.

"Didn't she say how long she would be away?" Lila asked.

"No, ma'am. But she said she thought it might be several weeks," Lila pursed her lips. "I suppose she will want some of her things sent to her."

"She took two suitcases and a steamer trunk."

"Well, if she sends for anything you'd better let me know and I'll look after it," Lila told the girl. She went back and made a last unavailing effort to persuade Rod to

Protecting Baby's Eyes During Bath

BY B. FRANKLIN ROYER, M. D. New York City National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness (Reprinted from CHILD WELFARE MAGAZINE)

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Gorgas Memorial, which has its headquarters at 400 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago.)

Sun baths for babies have become popular. Their great value in the promotion of healthful growth and in averting or curing rickets and tuberculosis is well recognized by the medical profession and by the public. Specializing in giving scientific advice in the rearing of children or in curing babies and children of their ailments regularly recommend sun treatment and advise about protecting the skin from severe sunburn.

Many mothers and a good many welfare workers become concerned about the possible effects of sunlight on the interior of the eyes of a baby receiving a sun bath. In order to assemble the facts, risks, or fallacies concerning such exposure, and with the hope of securing dependable suggestions as to what advice might best be given, the National society for the Prevention of Blindness recently asked the views of a number of eye specialists and baby specialists.

It will be a relief to anxious mothers to know that none of these eminent authorities have ever seen the eyes of a baby permanently damaged by exposure to the sun during a sun bath. These physicians agree that it is not advisable that the baby lie on its back exposed to the mid-day sun in summer, and the pediatricians pretty generally advise that in summer the sun baths should be given only in the morning and afternoon, approximately before ten and after three o'clock. All of these medical specialists advise that the same precautions be taken to prevent too rapid burning of the skin and tissues of the eyes, as with other parts of the body.

The muscular shutter at the front of the eye (the iris) and the little granules of dark pigment that give color to the eye and shut out excess light are sometimes not fully developed until a few weeks after birth. It would probably be wise, for the first month of life, to make some provision for protecting the eyes and eye tissues from any considerable exposure to the sun. The carriage hood suffices.

Usually, by the time the specialists are advising sun baths, the only eye precaution that need be taken during exposure is to have the child's feet directed away from the sun. While lying in this position morning or afternoon, the sun's rays will strike the top of the baby's head and forehead, the overhanging brows and the eyelids, but the rays of sunlight will not pass directly through the pupil to the center of the retina, that part of the inside of the eyeball concerned with vision. As a rule, the baby more than a month old or any young child will close the eyes if the light is too strong, or will indicate to the person charged with its care, by restlessness or by crying, if any eye discomfort or irritation is produced. Generally speaking the health value of the sunlight bath far outweighs any possible danger to eyes or vision. Just a little common sense is required in planning comfortable safeguards for baby's eyes during his sun baths.
